Buyers show keen interest in stylish three storey town houses

STYLISH three-storey town houses now on the market at The Green, Congleton, have made a big impression on potential buyers.

Interest has been high since the release of the properties just three weeks ago. The three and four bedroomed properties are the latest feature of this thoughtfully planned development, which offers modern living with a rural feel.

Close to South Manchester and easily commutable to its city centre, The Green has been specially designed to have a traditional village feel, similar to the area's historic local hamlets such as Astbury.

Architecturally, the homes have a Georgian influence and are arranged around a central green.

The elegant town houses all have views onto the green, enhancing the community feel of this semi-rural environment.

The impressive frontages include decorative railings, paving and coach lights, while rear gardens are fully turfed and each property has a double integral garage.

Inside, all the homes blend practicality with elegance. Kitchens feature stainless steel appliances, tiled floors and classy ceramics lit by discreet inset lighting. Each has an oven, hob and dishwasher included.

The half-tiled bathrooms are ergonomically designed in cool white with sparkling stainless steel taps and continental tiling to provide the finishing flourish.

Comfort and security are provided by thermostatically controlled gas central heating, locking windows and a security system.

Seddon Homes sales and marketing director, Denis Maddock, said: "These town houses are both stylish and distinctive, offering a modern look, but at the same time fitting in with the rural Cheshire environment.

"They offer a subtle combination of quality traditional design with contemporary materials to create modern but comfortable family homes. With such high specifications, it is easy to understand why these town houses are attracting such a high level of interest among home buyers this spring."
