Easter will provide first chance to view spacious new Seddon view home at Norton Cross

EAGER buyers will this Easter have a first chance to visit the view home at a development of just eight high-quality detached properties in the semi-rural setting of Norton Cross, Runcorn.

Seddon Homes will be opening the view home at the Eanleywood Farm development for the first time on Good Friday, 6 April. Potential buyers can make an appointment with the selling agents now to look around.

Buyers have already been impressed by the secluded collection of spacious five-bedroom detached homes, situated within a beautifully-wooded environment not far from the award-winning Norton Priory Museum.

The homes are up to one fifth larger than the biggest of any other new development homes to be found locally and three out of the eight have already been sold.

An attractive pond provides the perfect centrepiece to the development which blends traditional styling with high specification and quality of finish.

As well as being of above average size, the eight properties are built to three separate designs, giving each an individualistic feel.

Each boasts an elegant living room, dining room, study and fully-equipped kitchen, with separate utility room. The master bedroom includes an en-suite and, in some properties, the second bedroom is also en-suite.

Denis Maddock, Seddon Homes sales and marketing director, said: "Interest in Eanleywood Farm is already understandably keen and we are anticipating an enthusiastic response to the opening of the view home. The location is perfect for people seeking a home in a countryside setting, but with easy access to local facilities and national road and transport networks."

Prices start from £315,000. For more details about Eanleywood Farm, contact Denise Lewis at selling agent Reeds Rains on 0151 424 3024 or email widnes@reedsrains.co.uk
